In Their Country's Cause—The Bachant triplets, 7-month-old daughters of Mrs. Muriel Bachant and the late PFC Herbert Bachant, of New York, are America's youngest bond salesladies as they open the sixth War Loan drive in New York city by acting as aids in a mid-town bank. Their father was killed in action on a French battlefield last August, and had never seen his patriotic daughters.

French Cut Behind Nazis

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—French First Army troops, having unhinged the southern end of the enemy line, moved into position today to cut behind the Germans holding the Vosges passes by driving north toward Strasbourg along the Alsace plain west of the Rhine.

The Paris radio said such a swing north had begun and that a French Armored Division was assaulting Mulhouse, 16 miles northwest of the Swiss frontier city of Basel.

Capitalizing on the greatest break-through since Normandy, the French reached the Rhine at three places and have begun trading shots with the Germans across the river for the first time since early in the war.

Unconfirmed reports from Switzerland said the French were throwing a bridge across the Rhine for an imminent new invasion of Germany.

(The British radio said Eisenhower's headquarters had officially announced that the fortress of Belfort had fallen.

(Another British broadcast said the U. S. Seventh Army had liberated St. Die, 45 miles north of Belfort. This town was all that remained to the Germans of what once was the strong Meurthe river line in the Vosges.)

North along the 400-mile western front these gains were scored by five other Allied armies:

1—The American Seventh Army, advancing 12 miles in less than 24 hours, reached the approaches of Sarrebourg, 32 miles from the Rhine. Pushing northeast from captured Blamont along the main Paris-Strasbourg highway, the Americans swept up more than 20 villages and were within 14 miles of the Saverne gap. Forty miles to the south they had entered the Bonhomme pass.

2—In a new invasion of the Reich, tanks of the American Third Army plunged two miles into Germany's rich industrial Saar basin and were within two miles of Merzig, on the Saar river. Twelve miles northwest, mechanized cavalry units prowled five miles into Germany up the Mosele valley, ancient gateway to the Rhineland. East of Metz the Third Army was forging an assault ring along a 25-mile front from nine to 12 miles west and south of the Saar frontier.

Northeast of Metz, the 26th and 35th Divisions in a northeasterly advance gained up to three miles, a front dispatch said.

3—In the battle for the Cologne plain the American First and Ninth and the British Second Armies repulsed enemy counter-attacks and pushed one to two miles deeper into Germany. The Ninth Army completely breached one of the most formidable man-made obstacles on this front—an anti-tank ditch 15 feet deep, 15 feet wide and 10 miles long—and fought to within 2½ miles of the Roer river.

4—British troops in southeastern Holland were within 3½ miles of Venlo, the principal Maas river town blocking the way into Germany.

NO DONUTS?—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander in the European theater, pauses for a moment over coffee and a cigarette, as he directs operations in Germany. "Ike" wears a new fur-trimmed winter jacket.

MARCH ON THE RHINE—Allied armies, driving into the Rhineland and Saar Basin, have turned the Nazi southern flank and cracked the enemy line as (1) U. S. 3d Army troops push miles into Germany and near the Saar river. Meanwhile (2) the U. S. 7th Army reaches Saarbourg, in a tremendous 12-mile breakthrough, in less than 24 hours, while (3) French 1st Army units drive deep into the flatlands of the Rhine river from the Belfort Gap.

8th Takes More Italian Towns

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP)—British troops of the Eighth Army have captured several localities west of Forli and moved into positions held previously by the enemy south of Ravenna, Allied headquarters announced today.

German raids on the Fifth Army sector have been beaten off.

Kesselring Reported Dead in Italy

LONDON, Nov. 21 (INS)—The London Daily Telegraph quoted a report from Italy today in which German troops captured at Forli said they believed Nazi Marshal Albert Kesselring had died of wounds

Previous announcements said that the Nazi commander in Italy was injured when Allied planes strafed his car between Forli and San Martino Di Villa Franca, Oct. 20.

LED FIRST ATTACK—Lt. Col. Robert R. Clark, 2nd, of St. Joseph, Mo., is credited with leading the first night attack made by American troops inside Germany. His troops spearheaded the break-through into the Saar.

Nazis' Hungary Escape Periled

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Red Army troops closed in today on northern escape routes for enemy troops rolled back to the outskirts of Miskolc in Hungary.

The Germans declared the Russians had opened their winter offensive far to the north against 300,000 Nazis pocketed in western Latvia.

Late front reports said a German withdrawal from Miskolc appeared imminent. Nazi escape routes to the east and west of Miskolc already were cut.

One Red Army column had battled to the outskirts of Eger, 22 miles southwest of Miskolc, Russian front dispatches said.

Another Soviet armored unit grappled for a hold on road and rail communications between Miskolc and the rail hub of Losonc (Lucenec) on the Slovak border.

Units of Marshal Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army plunged into the southern outskirts of Miskolc.

Berlin reports on the Latvian offensive said the Russians had thrown huge infantry, tank, plane and artillery forces against the Germans on a 30-mile front near Liepaja, one of the two Baltic escape ports left to the Nazis.

The Russian midnight war bulletin said that southwest of Jelgava, 97 miles east of Liepaja, the Germans were dislodged from some positions in hand-to-hand fighting.

Jap Warship Blasted in Borneo Bombing

MacARTHUR HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 21 (AP)—American Liberators blasted a Japanese destroyer in their second strike at the enemy's Brunei naval base on north Borneo, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

No mention was made of sighting a battleship and cruiser, previously bombed and left exploding and in flames in the harbor. (This would indicate they sank.)

Big B-29 Force Pounds Kyushu

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (INS)—A large task force of China-based B-29 Superfortresses today raided industrial targets on Kyushu in the Japanese homeland.

A brief announcement by Gen. Arnold said attacking B-29's were from Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's 20th Bomber Command, and promised "a communique will be issued when further details are available."

Tokyo broadcast an imperial communique which attempted to claim 32 Superforts had been destroyed in the course of the raid. The communique stated 14 had been shot down definitely, 11 shot down but not confirmed and seven others observed emitting streams of black smoke.

Principal objectives on Kyushu are Nagasaki, Yawata, the naval base at Sasebo and the Omura aircraft factory at Omura.

As Arnold's announcement mentioned industrial targets, it was presumed the Omura plane factory was pounded again. Omura has been raided several times by B-29's, the last one Nov. 11.

Nagasaki, largest city on Kyushu and one of Japan's principal ports, is also the site of large industrial holdings belonging to the Mitsubishi family.

ENGLAND BOMBED AGAIN

LONDON, Nov. 21 (INS—From dawn Monday until 7 a. m. today, German air activity was directed against southern England and resulted in new damage and casualties, the ministry of home security announced.

Annihilation Aim Of Ike, Nazis Told

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—German military commentators described the Allied offensive in the west today as aimed at annihilating the entire German front and asserted Gen. Eisenhower "intends to force a final decision regardless of losses."

"There can be no doubt that the German defenders are facing a tough time in holding their own against the mighty onrush," said Martin Hallensleben in a DNB broadcast.

The general German retreat along the whole front was admitted, but Hallensleben said "only the dash of the French First Army along the Swiss border deep into Alsace bears the mark of an action which might might become precarious for the Germans."

Leader of Poles Asks Intervention of U. S.

LONDON (AP) — Polish Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk has appealed directly to the United States for intervention in his country's long dispute with Russia, seeking clearcut guarantees of postwar independence as well as a new Baltic order, it was learned.

Typhoon Slows Leyte Battle

By MURLIN SPENCER

MACARTHUR HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 21 (AP)—The battle of Leyte ground nearly to a typhoon-soaked stop today while Manila recovered from its fourth major American air raid of the month.

On Leyte, the typhoon took precedence over efforts of both sides on the Limon battle line. Gen. MacArthur's communique noted that the 32d Division was making some progress near Limon, reported that the enemy was continuing desperate efforts to break a road-block south of the town—and added: "All traffic, air, ground and sea, is fraught with great difficulties and hazards; and battle conditions are becoming static."

Only in the air was there spectacular activity. There, 35 enemy fighters and dive-bombers raided American positions, losing seven aircraft to air patrols and ground fire. American aircraft countered with attacks on Japanese communications lines, supply areas and waterfront targets near Ormoc.

Vice Adm. John S. McCain's carrier planes hit Manila again Saturday, damaged airfields, set blazes flaring on three merchant ships and destroyed 118 Japanese planes. Most of these were on the ground. Only 10 enemy planes were shot down in the Manila area and another eight near the fleet carriers.

At Limon, the Japanese continued their last-ditch efforts to hold a confused and disconnected line on the crests of ridges overlooking the Ormoc corridor.

Elements of the First Japanese division, cut off by the American road block south of the town, were still calling for help; and Gen. Yamashita sent tanks and automatic weapons to try to blast a way through to it. The MacArthur communique said, however, that the road block was holding firmly under heavy attack.

Truck Strike End Is Probable Today

Settlement of Boston's nine-day truck strike appeared probable today as a result of the first break in the bitter deadlock between the striking drivers and their union leaders. Representatives of the two groups—a subcommittee of six for the strikers and President John M. Sullivan and P. Harry Jennings, international representative for Local 25 of the AFL Teamsters' Union—met in conference at the Hotel Manger.

When the four-hour secret session ended early today, spokesmen for both groups said compromise proposals for settlement would be discussed at a mass meeting today at the State House. Details were not revealed.

The hotel conference marked the first time the two factions had gotten together since the dispute started nine days ago.

Since the outbreak of the strike, 14 spokesmen for the strikers were suspended by union officials. None of these 14 attended the conference, it was learned, but were represented by union members whom they selected.

These union members informed James T. Moriarty, state labor commissioner, that "all we seek is recognition of our rights as union members—an election as guaranteed by the international constitution." No mention was made about reinstatement of the 14 which the strikers have consistently demanded.

The joint announcement by the strikers' representatives and union officials about today's meeting at the State House was regarded by State officials as an indication that progress toward settlement had been made.

Indication that a peace move was under way came earlier when Saul Wallen, chairman of the regional War Labor Board, announced that at the request of State officials he had deferred referring the dispute to President Roosevelt for drastic action.

Further indication came when Com. Moriarty informed Gov. Saltonstall that after the night conferences he expected to be able to report progress in negotiations today.

If the strike is not settled today, Moriarty disclosed there is a possibility of State trucks, together with Army and Navy trucks stepping into the breach to forestall a serious Thanksgiving food shortage. Moriarty said a personal survey had convinced him that about 40 per cent of the city's trucks were operating under police protection, but this was denied by spokesmen for the strikers.

INJUNCTION HEARING

Union officers and strike leaders were scheduled to appear in Superior Court today for hearing on the temporary injunction issued last week by Judge Raoul Beaudreau, restraining the strikers from conspiring to prevent transportation of foodstuffs from the Boston Market Terminal.

Although John P. McBride, chairman of the State Commission of Necessaries of Life, said there is no food shortage yet, he admitted a critical situation for food for Thanksgiving Day may come about if the strike is not ended today.

Officials at the Market Terminal, South Boston, through which 90 per cent of Boston's produce passes, said that independent truckers and store owners were moving quantities of merchandise, while numbers of those drivers who did return to work began moving supplies out of the warehouses there.

The Army and Navy continued moving food and critical war supplies with their own trucks and were prepared to move any other materials needed to keep the military forces in high gear.

Nubbins in Bad Shape, Says Doctor; Still Losing Weight

DENVER, Nov. 21 (AP)—A little boy lay in a Denver hospital bed today, reported in bad shape after a tiring pre-dated Christmas celebration.

"NUBBINS" HOFFMAN
Dad Carries Him to Hospital

Forest (Nubbins) Hoffman, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hoffman of Cheyenne, Wyo., opened presents Sunday that came from as far away as Maine and Florida, then was whisked 100 miles to Denver from Cheyenne last night in his doctor's automobile for an examination by a specialist.

The boy's physician, Dr. G. B. Savory, said he was in bad shape. Dr. Savory added he didn't think the examination would help but everything was being tried. Nubbins was under treatment about a month ago by the unidentified specialist who was to examine him today.

In an interview, Hoffman said he brought the boy to Denver so Nubbins could get some rest.

"We would have been mobbed Sunday by people trying to get into the party if the police hadn't been there," the father said.

"It's hard to understand. I appreciate the people who have thought of Nubbins and have sent him presents, letters, telegrams and even money. I know they did it through kindness, but it's just too much. It's turned into a three-ring circus, but from now on I'm going to be master of all three rings."

In the last few days Nubbins has lost four pounds. Over a longer period of time his weight decreased from 30 pounds to 18.

Amnesia Victim's Identity Sought

City Hospital officials and police today were trying to identify a man about 67, found wandering at Massachusetts and Huntington aves., Back Bay, a victim of amnesia.

At the hospital, under questioning, he mumbled the name Walter Burns, but was unable to further identify himself. Doctors said he was very ill, with symptoms of pneumonia, and his name is on the danger list.

He is six feet, 180 pounds, of medium complexion, and was wearing a brown overcoat, gray hat, blue suit and shirt, red necktie and black shoes.

State Police Watch For 2 Escaped Nazis

State police throughout New England were ordered today to be on the lookout for two Nazi war prisoners who escaped from a timber patch in Oakland, Me.

The Boston FBI office said the prisoners, stationed at the war camp in Houlton, Me., are Fritz Knauthe, 22, and Karl Theuet, 23. Knauthe has brown hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. Theuet is blond and has a scar over his left eye. Neither speaks English.

Captured Metz Can't Surrender

By LEWIS HAWKINS

METZ, Nov. 21 (AP)—American doughboys have eliminated all large-scale organized resistance in Metz, but it appeared today there may be no formal surrender of the city for lack of a German commander to effect it.

Maj. Gen. Anton Dunckern, commander of SS troops here, was captured yesterday as the Third Army troops overran all except isolated spots of resistance.

The real battle was over by nightfall although some shooting still could be heard at two locations.

The Volkssturme defense inside Metz turned out to be a farce despite several hundred German officers and men who, with the assistance of the Gestapo, were supposed to goad the homeguard into house-to-house fighting.

Seldom has Metz succumbed to siege, and there have been even fewer occasions when attacking armies succeeded in taking it by assault as Lt. Gen. Patton's men have done.

In the middle of the fifth century Metz was plundered by the Huns under Attila.

For seven months in 1444 Metz was besieged by Charles VII of France before a ransom was paid. Henry II captured the city in April, 1552, and the Duke of Guise successfully defended it against Emperor Charles V from October, 1552, to January, 1553. Metz was ceded to France by the peace of Westphalia in 1648.

In the Franco-Prussian War Marshal Achille Francois Bazaine surrendered the city after a three-month seige. Ceded to the Germans in 1871, it was regained by the French after the first World War.

American troops came within reach of the fortress guns of Metz in 1918 shortly before the armistice.

Metz fell to the Germans on June 17, 1940, while France lay crushed under Hitler's military machine.

Hunt Scar Face In Kidnap, Attack

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Nov. 21—A man with a pock-marked face was the object of a state-wide search today by federal officials and local police in connection with the reported kidnaping and attack on a Woonsocket woman.

Police said the woman reported that the man forced her at gunpoint to drive him in her own car from a parking lot in Woonsocket to Millville, Mass., where she said he robbed her before the attack.

She said she was then forced to drive her assailant back to Woonsocket. The man was described as between 27 and 30, five feet eight inches tall, light hair and complexion and his face pock marked.

Pay Rise Seen 10-Cent Top

By PHILLIPS J. PECK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (INS) — The War Labor Board approached a decision today on the first of a dozen major wage cases with indications pointing toward a pay adjustment of five to ten cents an hour for approximately 700,000 CIO steelworkers.

The action of the American Federation of Labor in rejoining the WLB's deliberations was interpreted as meaning a ruling was near. Such a verdict would be a welcome announcement for the CIO convention now assembled in Chicago.

Although the Administration apparently is determined to maintain the Little Steel formula on general wage increases and the WLB already has ruled out the steelworkers' demand for a 17-cent boost, an adjustmen amounting to 10 cents could be made through other terms.

It might be given through a number of so-called fringe issues—night shift differentials, a better vacation schedule, severance pay and correction of alleged inequalities in the wag structure.

The WLB decision in the case of the Steelworkers Union, which is headed by CIO President Philip Murray, likely will become the pattern for rulings in cases involving automobile, electric, meat packing, aluminum, textile and glass workers. The demands are very similar.

It is believed the WLB will reject the CIO's demand for a guaranteed annual wage in the steel industry.

Fighting Men Ask All Buy War Bonds

Combat veterans of all branches of the armed forces and from all battlefronts, Pearl Harbor to the European campaign, appealed to the home front to back the attack by buying war bonds, at Sixth War Loan rallies in Greater Boston and throughout the state today.

In their pleas for extra war bond buying, these fighting men, who have seen at first hand what war bonds can accomplish, emphasized what the purchase of war bonds means to their comrades still on the fighting fronts. Every extra bond bought now will pay dividends in speeding the day when their buddies can come home.

Participating with American veterans appearing under auspices of the Massachusetts War Finance Committee is Flight Lt. Arthur Ross, Jr., RCAF, whose services have been loaned by the Canadian government to the U. S. Treasury Dept. for the Sixth War Loan campaign.

Ross, son of the manager and part owner of the Boston Bruins, was downed in occupied France when the explosion of an ammunition train he had bombed blew his plane to pieces. Several times an enemy captive, he escaped and was in Paris when the Allied Army arrived.

Americans among the Bond Combat Team speakers include Maj. Russell B. Wight of Belmont, MM 2-c. Edward P. Schreiber of West Roxbury, BM 1-c Tom Reardon, USCG, of Cambridge, and Cpl. Walter Houston, USMC, of South Boston, all outstanding heroes of World War II.

Loan Drive Sped By Morgenthau

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS)—The Sixth War Loan Drive gained momentum throughout the nation today, sparked anew by an admonition from Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that war costs are mounting tremendously and there can be no bargain-price victory.

Morgenthau, addressing 1600 persons at a New York war finance committee dinner, cited statistics from Gen. Marshall showing that the assault on Germany is taking an enormous toll of ammunition and costly equipment, and warned:

"The last barrage, that fearful tornado of high explosives which will knock first Germany, then Japan out of the war, will make our previous expenditure of ammunition seem trivial."

Brookline Fire Burns Army Man's Wife

Beer Seizure Is Countrywide

Health authorities in Greater Boston were on watch today for possible cases of illness resulting from the drinking of tainted beer and ale, following announcement by federal officials of the seizure and destruction of more than 40,000 cases throughout the state.

Naming the Commonwealth Brewing Corp. of Springfield as the alleged makers of the brew, the federal agents charged that the beverage contained fluorine, a member of the chlorine family, used in some industries as a preservative.

Thousands of cases traced in interstate shipment already have been recovered from states as distant as Texas, according to Chief Chemist Andrew M. Allison of the local food and drug bureau.

Allison also said that "in all probability" officials of the manufacturing firm will be given a hearing to show cause why the cases should not be referred to the Department of Justice for criminal prosecution.

Federal suits had been filed in other states to recover the suspected beer and ale, Allison asserted, and thousands of cases remain to be destroyed although U. S. marshals have been doing away with the beer in Springfield for two weeks.

The seizures were revealed when Asst. U. S. Atty. Alfred G. Malagodi filed eight suits in federal court here applying to 9262 cases.

American Girl Victim Tells Nazi Prison Camp Horror

This is the first of a series of articles in which a young Polish American girl describes her experiences as a prisoner of the Germans. Because her real identity must remain a secret to avoid the risk of Nazi reprisals against those who aided her in getting out of Germany, the girl is using the pseudonym of "Anna Nieznana."

By ANNA NIEZNANA
As told to John Creecy
Written exclusively for International News Service and the Boston Evening American

DETROIT, Nov. 21 (INS)—I am safe now in Detroit. I have good food and a warm house and a comfortable bed—things that a few months ago I had no hope of ever having again. For several weeks I have been able to sleep through the night, usually, without screaming in my dreams.

But I cannot yet think back upon those days at Ravensbruck without becoming numb with terror. When I try to talk of them, my heart pounds so that I can almost hear it thumping, and my voice chokes up.

So I have tried to shut it out of my mind.

I would not talk about it now except for one thing.

I hear so many people say: "We mustn't be too harsh with Germany after the war."

If the American people are going to have a voice in deciding Germany's future, I should like for them to know about Ravensbruck.

Ravensbruck is the Germans' largest concentration camp for women.

I should explain that a concentration camp is an altogether different thing from the internment camps where American citizens were put. You have read of Americans coming back on the Gripsholm and reporting that they had not been treated badly by the Germans. They were in internment camps.

If they had been in concentration camps, their reports would have been different.

I know. I was in Ravensbruck for more than a year.

I have seen my fellow prisoners—women as old as 90 and girls as young as 5—starved, degraded, treated as beasts of burden.

I have seen girls, among them some of my dearest friends, crippled and disfigured by German doctors who used them as guinea pigs in experiments.

I have been compelled to stand at attention for five hours at a time in rain and snow.

I have been lashed with a whip for washing with warm water, which was a very rare commodity in Ravensbruck's bleak, unheated barracks.

I have seen girls called out of line beside me and sent off to be shot. I was forced to help build the crematorium in which their bodies were burned.

I have been beaten and kicked by women members of the Gestapo, who were our guards; I have been bitten by their hounds.

I have seen some of my fellow prisoners—devout women whose misery had not robbed them of their faith in God—shorn of their hair as punishment for praying.

Although I am an American citizen, I had lived most of my life abroad when the war came. It was my plan to return to America, and I was waiting for my papers to be approved.

Then, one day, two members of the Gestapo came to the house where I was staying with relatives.

They were very courteous and pleasant.

"Will you please come to our office with us?" They asked politely. "There are a few questions."

Needless to say, I went with them.

I have never seen my relatives since.

The Gestapo men took me to headquarters and began questioning me. They were still very courteous. They relied on persistence to get what they wanted from me.

I gathered that they suspected my relatives of anti-Nazi activities and hoped that I would let slip something that would incriminate them.

Five of the Gestapo men stood around me, firing questions rapidly. This went on for hours and I became very tired. The men were still suave and polite. But my answers did not satisfy them.

Their tactics changed. I was taken into an adjoining room, undressed and beaten savagely with a whip.

After the beating I was brought back to the five men, and they resumed their questioning—still in a manner that was, on the surface, courteous and good natured, and as though they did not know that I was near exhaustion and my back was wet with blood.

They questioned me at intervals over the next two weeks—with more beatings in between questionings—but they did not get the information they wanted.

I protested that I was an American citizen. They insisted that I was not, so far as they were concerned.

After a couple of weeks they gave up the questioning.

I was herded into a box car with other women, and sent off to Ravensbruck.

Survey Finds Snobbery In Winchester Schools

The prevalence of snobbery in the selection of course students, and bartering over salaries for new teachers are charged in the report of a $10,000 survey of the Winchester school system by Prof. John Guy Faulkes of Wisconsin University.

"Examination of the children enrolled in the four high school courses reveal that there is strong ground for suspecting that parentage and place of residence play too large a part in the course a child enters," the report asserts.

"The salaries of new teachers to the Winchester system seems to have been in far too many cases a matter of barter rather than of policy," according to the report.

"The same applies to the non-instructional staff. Such trading tends to destroy the morale of the staff and encourages the exertion of pressure of individual teachers on school committee members, toward getting individual salary increases."

The report raps the school committee as "filling its meetings with trivia, and reflecting the opinion of the secretary." Reports of meetings are poorly organized and indexed."

Members of both the instructional and noninstructional staffs have exerted pressure on school committee members, the report alleges.

"One of the many important functions of a superintendent of schools is that of recommending new members to the teaching staff. There have been repeated evidences of disagreement over recommendations made by the superintendent.

"Such has inevitably led to tenseness and lack of confidence between the school committee and the superintendent."

While stating that the teachers are above the average in teaching skill, the report declares that "they do not impress one as being on fire. There is an atmosphere of apprehension and uneasiness among them."

The report also charges that the extra-curricula program of the Wincester schools "seems on the whole to be incidental and casual," rather than well-planned. "The curricula of the first three grades leaves much to be desired."

Super Production Of Guns, Shells Asked

Emphasizing Gen. Eisenhower's appeal for more heavy artillery pieces and ammunition, Col. H. B. Sheets, chief of the Boston ordnance district, today urged New England war workers to stay on their jobs and strive for super production.

He said he hoped New England would heed the Supreme Allied Commander's appeal in turning out fuses, primers, gun covers and other essential parts of ammunition and guns, so that soon it will no longer be necessary to ration heavy ammunition in the European area.

Book-Signing Ended After Elephant Balks

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP)—By request of the management, Judy, a 3000-pound elephant, won't keep her scheduled appointment at a department store autographing books.

INFANTICIPATING — Betty Jane Rose, Miss Birmingham of 1944, is expecting a baby, it was announced yesterday in Hollywood by Mrs. Nell Panky, mother of Pvt. Mickey Rooney, U. S. A., screen star husband of the beauty.

Judy, who is 12 and temperamental, went on a sit-down strike in the Marshall Field & Co. store yesterday for five hours, refusing to leave the third floor in a freight elevator—which was the way she arrived in the book section to play her role of autographing copies of a book about an elegant elephant.

Using a rubber stamp which she held in her trunk, Judy went through her job without a hitch.

When she balked at entering the elevator—apparently remembering and disliking her up-flight—harassed store officials called the Brookfield Zoo. Then they ordered a crew of carpenters to build ramps, three stories of them, for the fire stairs. A half bale of hay and bread were brought to keep Judy in good humor.

Five hours behind schedule, Judy stepped onto the ramp and walked down to the street—in three minutes. Then she walked proudly along the street, startling many of the theater and night life crowd, to her temporary headquarters in a store room.

She'll probably go back to her circus headquarters in Sheboygan, Wis., at once.

4 Million Jews Killed in Europe

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS)—Four to five million Jews have been killed by the Nazis and their satellites in Europe during the past few years, declared Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Administrative Committee of the World Jewish Congress.

"This number is a conservative estimate and does not include Jewish soldiers who were killed by the enemy while fighting with the armies of the Allies," he added.

"Damage to Jewish property cannot even be estimated until the conclusion of the war—but it runs into the billions."

The majority of the remaining 11,000,000 Jews of the world will be represented at the meeting of the World Jewish Congress in Atlantic City between Nov. 26 and 30, Dr. Goldmann said.

Incredulous He Killed His Wife

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS)—A slight, timid-looking house painter, who police say confessed to pouring kerosene and carbolic acid over his wife, then setting her afire because she aggravated him, was described today as incredulous at his own act as he was held on a slaying charge.

"I must have been crazy," Abraham Gold, 44, father of four children, was quoted as saying in his alleged confession describing how he set his wife ablaze in the bathroom of their home, then held the door shut until her screams died down.

According to police, Gold said he and his wife had argued for several weeks because he insisted that his second son, Manuel, 16, scrub the floors and the other children—Gussie, 19; Saul, 18, and Fannie, 13—also assist their mother in household duties.

Turkeys for Cent To 500 in Lynn

At least 500 lucky Lynn residents had their Thanksgiving Day turkey ready and dressed today for the annual feast, for which each one paid only one cent.

They were among more than 3000 persons who jammed the Lynn Armory at a one-cent sale for the benefit of St. Francis Church.

Another throng of 2000, unable to gain admission, made it necessary for police to detour traffic around Lynn Common during the sale.

STRICTLY MASCULINE

Yes, indeedy—as far as you are concerned Mr. Man, the "HE" part of this bargain business is an important pillar of this great institution. So important, in fact, that the Automatic Bargain Basement has a separate store for the male of the species. It has separate street entrances from Hawley, Washington and Franklin Streets in addition to adjoining entrances from the Main Basement. Because it is so handy to downtown offices, hundreds of males browse through on their lunch hour. Now it seems improbable that there's any living man in the vicinity of Boston who hasn't heard of Filene's Basement's famous sellings of $11 suits, $2 sweaters and $2.99 shoes—but if we could tell you the names of some of Boston's leading male exponents of the sartorial splendor who can afford to pay more who come here for $74.98 famous make coats, who buy their furnishings in store stocks that come from the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Florida, from Desmonds in California and who always head here for famous name hats, gloves and shirts, etc., it would emphasize better than mere words that men in all walks of life shop here for bargains.

Tells More About Torture Death

Dr. William J. Brickley, medical examiner, was scheduled to resume testimony in Suffolk Superior Court today, after describing the results of the torture slaying of 84-year-old Mrs Catherine McGinley of Charlestown, as disclosed by an autopsy.

For two hours during the trial of John L. "Limey" Wilson and Francis J. Murray, charged with first degree murder of the aged widow, Dr. Brickley testified regarding 80 separate injuries, including burns and stab wounds, which he found on the body.

The victim was alive when she was tortured with fire and a hot iron in the kitchen of her Edgeworth st. home, Dr. Brickley testified. He further stated he found a piece of burned flesh adhering to the face of a hot flatiron when he arrived at the scene. There was pepper in her right eye, he added.

A bottle of holy water was nearly empty on the kitchen table, the medical examiner said, and carried finger prints, as did a nearly emptied can labelled "syrup," with the side dented in which was on the floor near the victim's head.

Dr. Brickley, who gave a detailed description of mutilations and wounds on the body, said it bore an odor of kerosene, as did the floor. He said Mrs. McGinley was a "frail" woman, five feet two inches tall and weighed only 84 pounds.

He said her slayers, in their mad attempt to get her money, overlooked a small cloth bag sewed inside the victim's corsets, which contained a key to her trunk in which Dr. Brickley said he found $284 in bills and 13 bankbooks with deposits of some $18,000.

Smart to Steal, Say Teen Agers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Shoplifting by innocent-faced girls in bobby socks and sweaters has become a major problem in Portland retail stores, police reported.

The Portland Retail Trade Association launched an investigation after store executives reported confessions of high school youngsters that in their circles "it's smart to steal."

One department store reported that out of 19 shoplifters detected in a nine-day period, 17 were juveniles. A 12 and a 14-year-old girl, detected with $150 of pilfered merchandise, told detectives they were on their way to school when one girl suggested:

"Let's skip school today and go downtown and shoplift."

Trio to Make Storrow Gifts

Trustees of the will of Mrs. James J. Storrow of Lincoln, philanthropist and former national head of the Girl Scouts, are allowed their own discretion in naming charities to receive approximately half of her $5,025,000 estate.

In the document on file in Middlesex probate court today, however, Mrs. Storrow suggests 11 charitable and educational institutions as beneficiaries. The will lists personal property of $4,750,000 and real estate of $275,000 in Plymouth County and Bermuda.

Named executors and trustees are her son, James J. Storrow of Brookline, David H. Howie of Cambridge and Atty. William H. Best of Newton.

James Jackson Storrow, Jr., a grandson now serving overseas in the armed forces, is named as beneficiary to receive one-half of the principal of a trust. The other half is to go to incorporated charities or educational and scientific institutions.

The 11 beneficiaries Mrs. Storrow suggested for equal consideration are the Massachusetts Girl Scouts; Boston Public Library; Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests; Boston Museum of Fine Arts; Massachusetts General Hospital; Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary; Family Welfare Society; West End House, Inc.; Boston Council of Boy Scouts of America; Graduate Schools of Law and Business Administration of Harvard University, and President and Fellows of Harvard University for general purposes.

Where Are Cigs? GI in Britain Asks

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The halting of cigarette sales at all U. S. Army post exchanges in England except at Air Force combat stations led the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes today to demand an answer from Washington "to the question which is in the mind of every GI smoker—where are the cigarettes?"

The Army said a critical shortage and priorities for combat forces on the Continent caused the ban on sales. Hospital patients and combat personnel will still be able to smoke their favorite brands from the States.

British cigarettes cost about 50 cents for a package of 20. British Tommies are rationed 45 English cigarettes a week.

Paris Gangs Sell Cigs $4 a Pack

PARIS (AP)—Soldiers and officers in Paris and many other rear areas were told they could get no cigarettes, although the black market has them at $4 per pack.

Combat troops at the front recently were on short supply, but now they have plenty.

A large amount of Army cigarettes has been diverted, by one means or another, into the black market. Vendors peddled American cigarettes at $1.50 a pack two weeks ago to war-wealthy Parisians. Now, since they have boosted the price to $4, they still are getting more offers than they can fill.

'Americanos!' Cry Saves Navy Flier

By ALICE BISSELL

"Americanos!"

How this word—the only symbol of hope in the life of the Filipinos—saved the life of an Everett youth was learned today through a news dispatch from a Boston American war correspondent, H. P. Brown, in Leyte.

AMM 2-c Newton F. Reynolds, 18, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton F. Reynolds of Myrtle st., Everett, was machine gunner on a carrier plane. After an emergency landing, he and the pilot got on a life raft and shouted "Americanos!" to some frightened Philippine fishermen.

"There was no trouble after that. We were the first Americans they had seen since the Japs invaded the islands. They prepared special feasts, gave us scrambled eggs and fried chicken," Reynolds said.

"Because we were returning Americans, they held a dance and the girls wore pretty frocks. And the Filipinos took care of my chills and fever which I got during a terrible typhoon."

"We made our target," said Reynolds, "and dropped 500-pound bombs. One was a direct hit on a cruiser, the other three near misses. We started to strafe our way out when the ack-ack ripped onto our tail and knocked out the tail controls. We were losing altitude and the only thing left to do was to make an emergency landing."

When Reynolds had dodged from island to island under protection of guerrillas, his only remark after escaping death was, "Now all I want is some new clothes to start all over again."

His family, who hadn't heard from him for nine weeks, rejoiced at the news, and his father, a Navy Yard worker and veteran of World War I, said solemnly:

"This boy and his fighting friends do all of this and then put all their wages into bonds. It's something to think about as the Sixth War Loan opens."

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—Would appreciate if you would explain the following. Under the Home Loan provision of the GI Bill can a veteran apply for the $2000 guaranty by the government on more than one occasion? For example, he buys a home now, but is dissatisfied with location or home and wants to sell, or his job requires him to move to another section of the country where he would have to resettle. A. B., Canton.

A—Your question is quite timely because that angle of the loan provision was interpreted today by Horace Russell, general counsel for the United States Savings & Loan League, before members of the Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank League at a conference on the GI Bill.

He stated that a veteran is entitled to maximum loan guaranty of $2000 only once. He may follow this procedure, however. On his initial application, for example, he may ask for only $1000 from the gov't and in that case may later seek another loan, but the limit will be only $1000.

If he should buy a home and receive the $2000 loan guaranty and later sell his property, he will not be eligible to apply at a future date for a second loan guaranty.

Q—In a recent question of yours I read where a veteran who lost his discharge pin would be able to receive one at any Army and Navy store if he showed his discharge papers. Since then I have tried and they told me they never heard of being able to get one. I would like to have information where I might be able to receive pin. D. F., Cambridge.

A—I don't recall writing an answer such as you state above to a question regarding a lost pin. It has been published, however, that a discharged soldier who lost his pin might have it replaced by applying at First Service Command Office, Veteran Rehabilitation and Reception Center, 7 Beacon st., Boston. Army and Navy stores are forbidden to sell these pins.

Q—Can a discharged soldier wear his Presidential Unit Citation ribbon, Purple Heart, or any medals he may have acquired while serving, on civilian clothes?

E. H. R., Roxbury.

A—Army regulations state that such decorations and medals may be worn on civilian clothes on ceremonial occasions only when it is strictly appropriate for the occasion. For example: Military exercises, veteran conventions, parades, Memorial and Armistice Day affairs, etc.

Q—My husband and I have separated, but not legally. I am in ill health and cannot work for my support. Can he refuse the allotment? His mother is beneficiary of the government insurance. Should anything happen to my husband am I entitled to the insurance payments, if I can prove I am in need of medical care? R. J., Roslindale.

A—As legal wife you are entitled to allotment of $50 monthly; husband cannot refuse on that grounds. Mother-in-law will receive insurance payments regardless of your condition. No one but beneficiary can receive the insurance.

Officer Gone, Navy Puzzled

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21 (AP)—Naval authorities disclosed the disappearance under mystifying circumstances of Lt. William Kent Tralle, 35, from his stateroom aboard a ship recently arrived from the Pacific.

Investigators said Lt. Tralle, commander of a gun crew, has been missing since Saturday, and a three-inch knife was found on the floor of his stateroom.

The officer's disappearance was preceded by strange behavior, his wife, Maurene, told authorities. She said he awakened in their home early Friday, said he had urgent work to do, then drove to the ship "like somebody wild."

Burned His Wife To Death, Charge

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Police Capt. George Colgan said a 44-year-old house painter had admitted turning his wife into a human torch by pouring a mixture of kerosene and carbolic acid on her clothing, then setting it afire.

The husband, identified by Colgan as Abraham Gold, was booked on a homicide charge after his wife, Mrs. Bella Gold, 49, mother of four children, died in a Brooklyn hospital.

"She nagged me," the police captain quoted Gold as saying. "She said I was beating the children."

Plans All Completed For 1st History Test

As the William Randolph Hearst National American History Awards, borne on the enthusiasm of thousands of Boston high school students, rolled toward the elimination tests, the local committee announced today completion of plans for the examination, to be held in all public and parochial schools Thursday, Nov. 30.

The Boston champions, boy or girl, will come from the ranks of history students representing 40 high schools in Boston. The papers from the Nov. 30 examination will be studied by history teachers throughout the high schools.

This examination will bring to 25 history pupils $1000 in War Bond prizes donated by the Record, American and Sunday Advertiser. The three top winners in the local test will have an opportunity to take part in the National Examination to be held in Faneuil Hall on Monday, Dec. 11, and the chance of winning additional prizes totalling $5850 in War Bonds.

Each contestant will answer 20 questions on American history. He will also be furnished with a list of historical topics, out of which he may choose one for his 250-word essay.

First prize is $200, second $100, third $75, fourth, fifth, and sixth, $50 each, and seventh to 25th, $25 each, all in War Bonds. In addition, a $100 set of history books will be presented to the school whose pupils make the best record in the test.

A Roosevelt in Broadway Ballet Debut

THEODORA ROOSEVELT, granddaughter and namesake of the late President Theodore Roosevelt and first professional ballet dancer in the family, has danced in many cities in Canada, Brazil, and the U. S. A., but just got around to making her Broadway debut. She is in the ballet in the new musical "Sadie Thompson," for the opening night of which her parents couldn't get seats.

Daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt, she has been interested in dancing since she was a little girl. Her Boston relatives and friends had an opportunity to see her dance professionally when she appeared for two weeks at the Opera House with a ballet revue last winter.

She attended Radcliffe the year she was a debutante and was presented to Boston society by her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Lockwood of Bay State rd.

Her father returned in September from the Pacific to convalesce from wounds suffered in the Biak campaign. Her sister, Nancy, recently became the bride of Ens. William E. Jackson, USNR, son of U. S. Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Robert J. Jackson.

LT. AND MRS. GEORGE ALDRICH and Lt. and Mrs. William Moore represented the Navy in a congenial foursome dancing in the Copley Plaza Oval Room the other evening. Mrs. Aldrich, the former Alice Burrage, accented her long-sleeved black dinner dress with ruby-centered diamond clips and earrings and Mrs. Moore was chic in black with cuffs and deep neckline edged with ruffled lace.

Dining with friends was pretty Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Jr., the former Nancy Blumer, a Navy wife who has moved in with her parents while her husband is on active duty. She was pretty in a fascinating blue dinner gown with slit skirt and deeper blue sequins encrusted on the wide shoulders and deep V neckline.

In from Brookline to hear Benay Venuta were the newly-married Mr. and Mrs. Peter Edgerley (Sue Chapin) and Pete's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnault Edgerley of Dedham. Sailor Horace Mosser escorted Barbara Peabody.

CHAOTIC

THE CONFLICT over Federal or State control of civil aviation is one that NEEDS TO BE ended very soon—and there is now a prospect that it WILL BE ended soon.

Under an act of Congress, passed in 1938, the Civil Aeronautics Board exercises Federal authority over air routes and rates and the broader aspects of air safety.

However, that law was demonstrated in practice to be incomplete in one respect—simply because it was silent on the matter, it permitted States to impose regulations of their own within their borders.

Consequently, a condition arose in which an airplane traversing two or more States might be called upon to comply with several sets of rules enforced by different authorities and embodying different requirements.

In addition, certain aviation companies have been subjected by two or more States to SEPARATE tax levies on THE SAME properties and airplanes "in transit."

THESE duplicate tax liabilities have interfered with sound business economics and have complicated the Federal task of rate-making.

Indications now are that these impediments will be removed.

A Federal law has already been proposed in Congress which would give the Federal Government EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION over air traffic.

Enactment of the proposed new Federal statute has been obstructed by some State opposition, but that opposition now seems to be disappearing.

At the Oklahoma City meeting the National Association of State Aviation Officials presented an approved program whereby the maintenance of "standards of competence of fliers and certification of aircraft" would be recognized by the States as functions of the Federal Government, and State responsibility would be mainly to "assist" in the enforcement of the Federal regulations.

Likewise, the same association submitted a set of proposed uniform State laws, to be adopted by the 48 Legislatures of the States, which would be complementary to the Federal laws and would govern such auxiliary items as airport location and safety.

Finally, "multiple" State taxation of airlines having been declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court, the Federal Civil Aeronautics Board is formulating, by congressional request and in direct consultation with the States, an aviation tax program which would prevent tax duplication while also protecting the rights of "taxing jurisdictions."

IT IS QUITE apparent that acceptance of a comprehensive program along these lines would be entirely within the framework of the American system of Federal and State dual government.

At the same time, it would facilitate the widest possible development of domestic air transportation with the greatest attainable degree of safety in air travel.

Postwar aviation will be a global activity involving numerous relationships with which the Civil Aeronautics Board will have to deal.

The International Civil Aviation Conference at Chicago is grappling with some of the issues now, with no immediate success.

The establishment of an adequate INTERSTATE aviation policy is the obvious pre-requisite to any INTERNATIONAL commitments which the American people could be asked to approve.

For the Federal Government must have necessary and unchallengeable authority over all domestic aviation before it can exercise competent supervision over American airlines engaged in foreign service or over foreign airlines extending to the American field.

AM ASKED for a poem for an "expectant mother." Author of above is herself an expectant mother. Her husband is in the U. S. Navy. It might be interesting for an expectant mother with artistic talent to paint a picture of what she thinks her baby will look like. All mothers have ideas as to the appearance of their future child. Wonder how close most of them come to being right? . . . There is a book, titled, "How to Eat a Lobster." This does not deal with the etiquette of lobster eating. It describes in detail how to get most meat from the lobster. I think I will get a copy. We had lobster for dinner last night. It was delicious. However, I believe my lobster eating technique could be improved. I think a little more relaxation is needed in my approach. I feel I am too easily discouraged when trying to get the maximum of meat from a claw.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Decide an argument between a couple of sergeants. How many cakes should there be in a restaurant order of hotcakes and sausages? How many sausages? A—Should be six hotcakes and four sausages. Q—Is it true some men drafted for the British Army have been forced to work in coal mines? A—Perhaps "forced" is not the proper term. In Britain working in a coal mine is considered the equivalent of military duty. Two out of every ten men drafted in Britain are assigned to work in coal mines. These two are chosen by lot. Q—Do you really smoke genuine stogies? A—Certainly, I am smoking one right now. Was made by a Pittsburgher who has been making stogies for 45 years. An excellent smoke.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1944, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—A week before the close of the Presidential campaign, Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, a Southern Roosevelt Democrat, did me the extravagant honor of reprinting an essay done in June, 1940, in which I had said that, as a Presidential possibility, Tom Dewey was preposterous and that his election would be a calamity.

That was my true opinion of Dewey as of that date when he was 38 years old and his only experience as a public official had been that of prosecutor for the Federal and State governments in New York and local District Attorney.

In those roles, I did not fail to say, however, he had earned a degree of respect from honest citizens rather than the persecution by ridicule which had been his lot at the hands of supercilious liberal wits and the pundits of the Communist wing. He was preposterous as a candidate because he was politically immature and personally unknown to the electorate.

To my mind and, in the opinion of most of my colleagues and almost all politicians, he would have been macerated by the Roosevelt machine. And, had he been elected by some fluke, the nature of which I cannot imagine, we would have had a President only 38 years old who would have been under a pull to the most conservative elements of the Republican Party, including those, who, in common with Mr. Roosevelt's present following of Communists, were unreasoning opponents of preparation for almost inevitable war largely because Roosevelt was in favor of such preparation if not in favor of war, itself.

BUT I remember a young ballplayer who was preposterous, too, when he first joined the Yankees and was called Tanglefoot because he couldn't handle his feet around first base, who presently became the greatest of his time.

I recall awkward and wilful little horses on the track which grew quickly into champions with schooling and experience, and a great fighter who was marked off as a foredoomed failure and sold for $5000 after a horrible 15-round beating by Harry Greb.

There have been suchlike transformations in many young football players and, turning now to politics, we have had other good men who, at the age of 38, would have been rejected as presidential possibilities, even by their friends, on the ground that they were, as we say on the sport side, still "away" or not yet there. These verdicts ran on Lou Gehrig and Gene Tunney when they were kids.

In the campaign of 1944, however, there was no question of "preparedness" or "isolation" except in the Communist propaganda. But Communism now had become a menace and Dewey, after establishing a record as Governor of New York, could raise the issue of personal and political honesty and personalize it in direct controversy with Roosevelt.

There was no answer when he said that in evaluating news from the White House nowadays the question before the public was not whether it was good or bad but whether it was true or false.

Only an accident of timing denied Dewey the opportunity to challenge Roosevelt on his remark to the Boston Democrats that in 1928 he ran for Governor at the request of Al Smith. It was then too late for Dewey to take the air and prove, as he could have, that Roosevelt consented to run at Smith's request only after Smith and John Raskob had pledged him an enormous sum of money for his Warm Springs venture and put the check in the mail and that this was duPont money.

★ ★ ★

SO THE DEWEY of 1940 was no more comparable to the Dewey of 1944 than Tanglefoot Gehrig with Gehrig the Great or the Tunney who lost to Greb with the Tunney who, in Philadelphia, walked straight across the ring and really won the title in the first ten seconds with one terrible right-hand smash under the eye.

The Dewey of 1944 lost to Roosevelt by a very small popular plurality but four years earlier he not only would have lost but would have been lost.

So, altogether, I think I was pretty smart in my judgment of 1940 and just as wise in my judgment this year, in which I believe many traditional Southern Democrats will concur after a little more experience with the Communist in the Roosevelt fourth administration.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21—Now its the "Vara Girl" coming to the screen with all censorable curves intact, in a movie that will cost Charles R. Rogers over two million Technicolor dollars.

Diana Lynn

If you don't know these streamlined babies—drawn by Artist Varga for national publications—every serviceman does. Along with the Petty girls and Betty Grable, they are the leading pin-up queens of the war.

Rogers has big plans for getting the naughty belles on celluloid. In addition to tapping his bankroll, he plans to comb the country to find the living prototype of all the Varga drawings and perform an unknown beauty to a professional. If you think you are it, for the love of Mike write Rogers—not me.

JUVENILE STUFF and little sister roles are out for 17-year-old Diana Lynn. Paramount, hoping to dodge the hurdles Universal encountered bringing Deanna Durbin out of pigtails into maturity, is launching Diana immediately on the romance trail in "Feature for June." It's the story of a couple of smarty magazine editors who go to a small town to shoot advance pictures of a wedding that really won't take place for two months. Meanwhile, the wedding starts to fall apart and they're stuck with the pictures in print.

WHEN RENE CLAIR interviews actors for "Ten Little Indians" he asks them, "Would you like to be a murderer in my picture, or had you rather be a fish?" With apologies to Bing's popular song, most of them had rather be a "suspect," and the cast lines up with Louis Hayward, Barry Fitzgerald, Walter Huston, Sir Aubrey Smith, Roland Young and Mischa Auer, with several cheerful potential murderer roles yet to be filled.

SIDE-LINES: Alan Ladd and Sue Carrol are off soon on a hospital tour . . . How come Shirley Ross and Ken Dolan don't join the Humphrey Bogart-Cary Grant reconciliation group and kiss and make up? GEORGE MURPHY LOOSED his Celtic charm on Bostonians in small groups and large. The large groups were those attending his Sixth War Loan rallies . . . But the modest Georgie, son of the late "Mike" Murphy, Yale's great trainer, held back unduly in "explaining his success" in answer to that inevitable question by the press . . . Murphy gets plenty of good roles on his ability to sing, dance and act . . . But he is also considered a talisman . . . Directors who aren't a prey to jealousy love him on a set, especially when a musical picture is being produced . . . A strange twist in Ray's career is the tremendous success he has made recently with records of "Let Me Love You Tonight" and "Whispering" . . . Washington Scene

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 21—I would like to say a few heartfelt words at this time about the beauties of having breakfast upon arising, or within a reasonable period thereafter.

Having lived a commonplace life among everyday citizens, I took it for granted this was a universal practice. I did not know there were people who considered it hell-raising fun to leap out of bed before dawn and take bus, plane, and bus just to have breakfast 248 miles away.

But it seems I am with just such a group deep in the something or other of Texas, and I do not mean heart. This is the gathering of newspapermen who are touring Texas for a reason which I have not yet succeeded in fathoming.

Lest this sound bitter, let me say that I am having a wonderful time and wish you were here—I mean particularly you, Ickes. I have never encountered so much genuine hospitality—once you get to where the hospitality is being dispensed.

But it seems the distances are somewhat lengthy here. Many people may not realize this, but Texas is bigger than Manhattan Island, and maybe the Bronx, too. Yet we seem to be dead set against eating in the morning until we have covered more territory than Stanley did looking for Dr. Livingston, I presume.

One gets hungry in this interval—what the devil do I mean "one" — everybody gets hungry—but there is no truth to a rumor which Mr. Ed Jamieson of Washington tried to spread this morning. Referring to a waitress who served us breakfast in Freeport, five and a half hours after we left Corpus Christi, the lying hound said:

"It is too bad about that poor girl. She shoved some food toward Dixon and he snapped at it so ferociously he gnawed her arm up to the shoulder."

★ ★ ★

LET US INDULGE in a bit of philosophical discourse for the moment.

There is something about getting up in the morning, yawning leisurely from one room to another, then sitting down to an unhurried breakfast, which is good for the soul.

You finish up with a couple of cups of coffee and light a cigarette.

About the only bad habit I have avoided is that of smoking before breakfast. No moral or health considerations are involved. It is simply that a cigarette before breakfast kills the exquisite pleasure of that first deep puff after.

I do not wish to become embroiled in a debate, but I think the reason many people smoke and drink too much, particularly in the late afternoons and late evenings is that they are unconsciously hungry. No doctor or psychologist told me this; it's just my own idea.

But what happens when you take a modified Cook's tour before breakfast? I will tell you what happens.

★ ★ ★

FIRST OF ALL, everybody packed too rapidly. I did not do too badly, because all I overlooked was a sock, the cap of the tooth paste, all my notes of the day before and my belt. The latter would not have been so bad except that absence of food caused a shrinkage so that I had to hang onto my pants all morning.

But articles left behind by my colleagues included three suits sent to the pressers; a denture; two ties; a pair of bedroom slippers, and the bottom half of a pair of pajamas. One distinguished correspondent came flying out with his suitcase and didn't recall until an hour later that he had neglected to pack it.

★ ★ ★

WELL, WE TOOK a bus to the Navy base, then a PBY plane to Galveston, then a bus 75 miles to Freeport. The only reason for all this that I could discover was that some one thought it would be more fun to breakfast in Freeport than Corpus Christie—and I hope he gets rickets from malnutrition.

Being starved, everyone smoked his head off.

Mr. Ace Bailey, of Memphis, and Mr. Ray Tucker, of Washington, who are bosom friends, got on the bus together. When Mr. Tucker started to sit down beside his pal, Mr. Bailey snapped:

"Go away; I don't like you this early."

Mr. Frank Adams, of New York, confided to me he was thinking of quitting newspaper work.

"I could always pick up a little money selling you breakfast," he said.

Take a nice, long trip before breakfast—nuts!!!

WE TOURED the Dow Chemical Works at Freeport. This plant, as you probably know, is performing one of the greatest miracles of the age. It is taking magnesium from sea water!

It claims it can take gold from the sea, too, but it isn't doing it yet. Dr. Willard Dow, president, says it's easier and safer to keep the gold in the sea than at Fort Knox, Ky. It doesn't cost anything to guard it and you can always take it when you want it.

"In fact," he adds, "it might be better if we put all the gold we own back in the sea. It would save us a lot of money and be more restful for Morgenthau. We could always recover it when we wanted it."

★ ★ ★

I HAVE a lot of fascinating things to tell you about magnesium, which, incidentally, is the lightest structural metal known, and not a cure for a hangover. If you're in the neighborhood, drop in tomorrow.

Holiday Treats

By MARTHA LEE

WHAT WE HAVE for the piece de resistance of Thanksgiving dinner this year will depend upon what is available in the districts in which we live. It may be turkey—if we're lucky; it may be chicken; it may be roast pork or some other meat.

However, it's good to know that the traditional Thanksgiving vegetables are plentiful. Cauliflower, carrots, celery, squash, onions and turnip—all are abundant in supply and reasonably priced. Cabbage, potatoes and spinach are plentiful, too. Turkey may be scarce, but there's certainly no shortage of variety in vegetables.

THANKSGIVING SUGGESTIONS

Why not start Thanksgiving dinner with broiled grapefruit—there's a good supply of grapefruit in the market. And for the relish tray, try raw carrots and celery sticks.

If you like cauliflower, you'll be glad to know that the supply is extremely heavy—and for a really tempting dish, try it served with cheese sauce.

CHEESE SAUCE

2 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 tbsp. flour — ½ tsp. salt
1 cup milk — ⅛ tsp. pepper
½ to 1 cup grated American cheese — Dash of paprika

Melt butter or margarine and stir in flour; gradually stir in milk, and stir until mixture boils and thickens, then cook about 3 minutes longer, stirring occasionally; add seasonings. Add grated cheese and paprika, and stir over low heat until cheese is melted. Place over hot water to keep hot and cover tightly to prevent crust from forming. Makes about 1¼ cups sauce.

You wouldn't forget onions, potatoes and turnips — and if you serve diced white potatoes and yellow turnips together, you'll enjoy this flavorful combination. And to top it all off—squash pie!

SQUASH PIE

One-crust pastry
3 eggs, slightly beaten
½ tsp. cinnamon — 1 tsp. salt
1 cup sugar — ½ tsp. ginger
½ tsp. nutmeg — ½ tsp. cloves
2 cups strained cooked squash
2 cups milk, scalded

Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry and make fluted standing rim. Combine eggs, sugar, salt and spices; gradually stir in milk, then squash. Turn into pastry-lined plate and bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 minutes; then reduce heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and bake 20 to 25 minutes longer, or until knife comes out clean when inserted in custard. Makes one 1-crust (9-inch) pie.

The vegetable possibilities for your Thanksgiving table seem unlimited when we add to the above list beets, broccoli, eggplant, escarole, lettuce, parsnips, peppers, radishes, sweet potatoes and tomatoes—all in moderate supply.

SCALLOPED EGGPLANT

1 medium-sized eggplant
6 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. chopped onion
3 cups soft bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt — ⅛ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. poultry seasoning
2 tsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. minced parsley

Pare eggplant and cut in ½-inch pieces. Put in double boiler, cover, and cook over hot water about 30 minutes, until eggplant is tender. Melt butter in flying pan, add onion, and cook 3 minutes. Mix bread crumbs with salt, pepper, poultry seasoning, lemon juice, and parsley. Add onions and butter, and mix well. Stir in eggplant gently. Pour mixture in greased 1½-quart baking dish and bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg F.) about 15 minutes, until browned. Makes 6 servings.

Beauty Ends Facial Blemishes Fashion

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

EVEN THE GALS with the breaking-out type of skin yearn for a bit of facial glamour. Of course, they should know they can't use all kinds of foundations . . . since their complexions can't take it . . . but try and tell them that. What girl wants to go bare-faced? Not in this day and age . . . when foundations give many a new facial outlook . . . and who doesn't want to keep up appearances?

A girl with a troubled complexion doesn't want to show it to the world . . . even while she is doing something about it. Let the morrow take care of itself . . . at least today the complexion is smeared over with a colored film. It is punishment enough to have to keep the lid on the candy box . . . and subscribe to a wise, vitamin-crammed diet of skin-clearing vegetables and roughage to hold that misbehavin' complexion in line. But to be denied even part of that pot of facial gold beyond the horizon . . . a glorified, glamorized, revamped complexion filmed with appealing colored warmth . . . is practically too much to ask of any girl . . . even if it means a sorry tomorrow with an extra eruption or two.

That's why the antiseptic beautifying foundation we promised to write about a few days back should be any such troubled gal's stunning legacy. If she must use a foundation . . . and most of us must . . . let her, at least, use one that is medicated and protective . . . that gives beauty to the complexion as it soothes and medicates the disgruntled, underlying condition. And, it comes in varying shades.

With such a medical background and dermatological compounding . . . facial deportment will be temporized with complexion beauty by a foundation that is most friendly to an acting-up skin. For while covering up minor blemishes, its antiseptic and protective blending will blend right into the skin as a beauty balm. Drink water, too . . . plenty of it. Get enough sleep . . . and for a bit of facial loveliness to dispel the breaking-out tendency be sure and use something like this that will help but not aggravate the condition.

For the name of this antiseptic beautifying foundation phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

YOU MAY BE a sunny honey with a perfect figure comparable to the stream-lined vivacity of Columbia Star Leslie Brooks . . . but if your complexion can't match the beauteous, sun-kissed radiance of hers . . . time's a wastin'. The girl with a troubled complexion need not worry too much . . . for an antiseptic beautifying foundation will help her out of her dilemma.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

CHICAGO, Monday—I have had a number of letters in past few days, some of them stating that I was wrong when I said in a recent column that the President did not promise, in the campaign of 1940, that our boys should not leave these shores.

In other letters, the writers stated that they have read articles in the newspapers which said I was wrong, and they wished to assure me they had heard the President qualify this statement over the radio, by the words: "except in the case of attack."

Therefore, to clear this situation up, I have decided to give the whole thing in chronological order.

1—The Democratic platform adopted in Chicago in 1940, stated: "We will not participate in foreign wars, and we will not send our army, naval or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside of the Americas, except in case of attack."

2—On Sept. 11, 1940, in Washington, the President said: "I hate war, now more than ever. I have one supreme determination—to do all that I can to keep war away from these shores for all time.

"I stand, with my party, and outside of my party as President of all the people, on the platform, the wording that was adopted in Chicago less than two months ago.

3—On Oct. 23, 1940, in Philadelphia, the President again said: "We are arming ourselves not for any foreign war. We are arming ourselves not for any purpose of conquest or intervention in foreign disputes. I repeat again that I stand on the platform of our party.

4—On Oct. 30, 1940, in Boston, the President said: "And while I am talking to you, mothers and fathers, I give you one more assurance. I have said this before, but I shall say it again, and again and again.

"Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars. They are going into training to form a force so strong that, by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores.

It is this last speech which probably created a false impression, and yet everyone of us knows quite well that once the bombs dropped on our soil at Pearl Harbor, the war was no longer a foreign war, but was a war in defense of our own country.

Good Black Coat Tops

By BETTINA BEDWELL

NOW THAT the styles are jelled, so to speak, and most women have taken sides by buying, the good black coat comes out as the winning entry in winter wrap fashions for town wear. This isn't saying that a mink coat is not, as usual, the supreme symbol of luxurious elegance, but a good black coat can step out alongside even mink and not lose face.

Furriers tell me that the well-known black Persian lamb coat is the most popular coat they have. And its equivalent in cloth is getting around on the very best backs, too.

Carrie Munn, the socialite designer, is one who plunks for a good black cloth coat as a necessity in any wardrobe, and her entry is sketched. She calls this coat "triangle" because of the triangular closing, which is done with big, shiny black buttons. The small collar is stitched all over, and the sleeves are gracefully wide at the armholes. Brown accessories are worn with this coat.

Clean Out Files For Paper Drive

Workers at the State House, city hall, courthouse and other public buildings went into action today bundling up old records and cleaning out old files for waste paper salvage, in response to an urgent appeal by the War Production Board.

"It is idle to buy war bonds with which to keep our fighting men the best equipped in the world if we cause a delivery bottleneck by failing to provide the paper necessary for overseas shipment of supplies," explained John T. Kiley, regional WPB salvage manager.

In an effort to increase Boston's November paper salvage collection, George C. Hyland, chairman of the city's salvage committee, appealed to every downtown tenant to bundle up all scrap paper, including old books, records, letters and contents of filing cabinets.

Hyland asked that all such paper salvage be placed at the curb ready for city trucks to pick it up early tomorrow.

So. Boston JVA Plans Pageant

Junior Victory Army members at Olivia James House, E. 7th st., South Boston, are already deep in plans for their annual Christmas pageant, that yearly event so much a part of the Yuletide season in their neighborhood.

Frances Yankum, Marie Yankum, Mary Lewis—she's going to be the Madonna—Joan Mahoney, Jean Conley, Anthony Spurio, Ruth Hewitt, Mary Cashman, Bernadette Cashman and Francis Mirisola, are all among the 25 or more JVA's taking part in this year's pageant, many of them younger brothers and sisters of those who took part in the same Nativity scene in former years.

Miss Mary E. Mooney has charge of the production which will be given Dec. 19, 20, 21 and 22. The young people will also sing carols and will go to the nearby convent and institutions for the sick and blind in their neighborhood to spread their Christmas cheer.

On Tuesday, Dec. 19, the JVA's will help out with the annual Friendly Circle party given for those who are blind. This custom started a long while ago when Perkins Institution for the Blind was located in South Boston, near the settlement house, and has continued since

Evelyn Varden Steals 'Laughing Water' Honors

By PEGGY DOYLE

Evelyn Varden, that stalwart of many a lagging season, last night stole the show at the Plymouth, where "Laughing Water," the new comedy by Phoebe and Henry Ephron, was presented by John Golden.

"Laughing Water," believe-it-or-not, has nothing to do with giggle-water or Indians. The rather unfortunate title is suggested by the locale of a small summer camp for adolescent girls operated by Miss Varden, who is magnificently adequate under the most trying circumstances.

The Ephrons know their girls' camps, or so went the lobby chit-chat during intermissions. There was a naturalness about the situations and the characterizations that found a laughing response on the part of the paying customers.

The child with enough food allergies to put her on a starvation diet, the youngster whose newspaper publisher-father's nose for news threatened the continuance of the camp, the councilors who were vying for youthful "Dr." Leon Janney's attentions . . . all these help to make up the colorful mosaic of that typically American institution, a girls' summer camp.

Miss Varden, who was seen here in "Our Town," "Candle In the Wind" and "Russet Mantle," is one of the theater's better performers. In "Laughing Water" she carries the ball, was a constant delight to a laugh-hungry audience. Her timing, her marvelous comedy sense, her brisk, vital delivery rang the bell for this aisle-sitter, as they have innumerable times before.

Ann Andrews, playing a between-engagements actress doubling as the camp's drama coach, was amusing in her crisp, certain fashion. Harry Bannister, as the headline-minded newspaper publisher who tangles with a mosquito-netting tent and Miss Varden's resourceful maneuvering, turns in a smart performance.

Patricia White, in the role of the two-timing girl reporter who wins the doctor just like that from the admiring councilors, plays with a nice light touch and young Leon Janney, as the doctor, suggests adequate self-esteem for his assignment. A familiar of many a Broadway show, the Negro actor, Oscar Polk, contributes his full quota of comedy as the camp's man-of-all-work.

"Laughing Water," which Mr. Golden is producing in association with John Pollock and Max Siegel, won't slay you with its wit but you'll discover it to be genuinely entertaining and good for laughs when Miss Varden is on stage.

HEADTURNING beauty Joan Bennett is headline-hunting with fear in her heart in this sequence from the Edward G. Robinson starrer, "The Woman at the Window," opening Thanksgiving Day on RKO Boston screen.

'All Request' Hits On Modern Bill

"Cover Girl," starring Rita Hayworth with Gene Kelly, and "Remember The Day," starring Claudette Colbert, make up the special "all request" program opening today at the Modern Theater.

Fiedler to Conduct Sinatra Concert

Arthur Fiedler, who has never heard or seen "The Voice," will conduct his own orchestra that will play for Frank Sinatra at the latter's first concert Sunday night at Symphony Hall.

Although a sellout house is anticipated, there are some choice seats still available for this rare double-feature at Symphony Hall.

Chick Meehan Ready to Invade Hub Pro Field

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

As an old football cripple with arthritic knees and cleat scars on my brisket I often marvel on the fascination of the game which lures us old grid codgers back like drunkards to their bottles. Somehow a football man remains, in that portion of his being forever adolescent. So here comes Chick Meehan, the ex-swineskin professor at NYU, who quit the game some years back to make a potful as a contractor.

Here he comes, I say, a-teasing the cash papas of the Boston Braves to invest in another pro football team in a league which is yet unborn. And, as yet, being intrigued by the thought of employing their idle acres in the autumn, the Braves dollar daddies haven't said yes and they haven't said no!

Now Chick is one of our most persuasive people. He sees big, thinks big and does big. Where another man sees a peanut, Chick sees a hubbard squash. Where one sees a sparrow, Chick sees a buzzard. So, in his imagination, HIS league isn't just a folksy affair of towns set a short Pullman hop apart. No sir! This one is spread all over the compass in spots like Dallas, Houston, N'Awleens, Miami, Bawston, Pittsburgh and N'Yawk.

Sounds sorta psychopathic at first hearing—and like to bust the management with hawlage and hotelage. But Slick Chick is one of our best box-office brains and he has a scheme to harness the weather by playing the early half of his schedule in the pleasant hazy autumn of the North and taking the latter half South to the mammy fried chicken, sweet magnolia and winter sun-tan belt. The only flaw in this logic is that Bostonians, grown pretty N'agh from watching many sport failures, are not likely to buy into Chick's home games during the early diaper stage and then have them kidnaped, a la George P. Marshall, to some furrin locus.

Orchids to Commissioner

It's only a whisper. But it may grow to be a shout. We're hearing that certain Beacon Hill political powers are moving to drop Race Commissioner Charley Connors from the State pay pad come next February, when the administration changes. As one who has whopped racing in these purlieus as too expensive a frivolity for serious people, let me advise the incoming Governor and council DON'T DO IT!

Not a whiff of scandal or calumny has touched Massachusetts horse and pooch tracks under Connors' administration. And don't think there haven't been some weasel types who'd like to sink their arms up to the elbows into the track gravy. The mild, courteous, honest little man is himself richer today only by the legal salary he draws. He has earned the respect of some of the most cantankerous, noisy characters known to sport. He gives no favors and asks none. Soooooo wot? So, should the Beacon politicos drop Connors and appoint some Good Time Eddie the chances are splendid to have the public get a snootful of nausea and drop the whole racing structure, which nets the State some $7,000,000 in annual taxes, down the nearest waste pipe. On second thought maybe that would be a good thing.

Worthy Pensionnaire

Now there's Old Jedge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who is enjoying a spell of ill health in a Chicago hospital and who is being reappointed for a term of seven more years as the High Bailiff of baseball.

The Jedge took baseball when it was infested with cow town types, picturesque inebriates and wrong living no-goods and deloused them until the game gave way to uniformly docile, decent behaviour. Indeed he did so well that he fairly worked himself out of a job.

Now he hasn't much to do for his $75,000 any more, though he does it with gusto and contrives to make history out of trivialities. He presides over the fussy details of the All-Star and World Series games before going back to six months of recuperative loafing. But he's worth every penny of the lavish pension for keeping the game cleansed of larcenous spirits and though he has become more ornamental than useful I, for one, will be sorry when his bones grow too brittle and he takes down his commissioner's shingle and bottles up his kindly bluster in some hearthside corner of his home.

They Have Eyes, But Do Not Hear

Another favorite illusion has been shattered by the University of Michigan's football squad which, when recently polled on the psychological effect of organized cheering declared that grandstand yells and the rah-rah-routine doesn't mean a thing to the varsity heroes in the heat of cawnflict.

It may be mildly mortifying to the thousands of non-athletic students who shout nursery rhymes, adjuring the team to "Fight, fight" or "Hold that line" to know that only the ghost of their massed supplications reach the ears of the athletes. Any varsity player will tell you the sound comes as a meaningless jargon which penetrates only when the team is close to the sidelines and the din drowns out the quarterback's voice in the huddle.

From the writer's own experience on the field an athlete concentrates so intensely that noise and the happenings outside the game hold little significance. The reasons, to a lesser extent, are the same as those which prevent our AEF infantrymen, pushing against enemy positions from noticing the terrific uproar of explosions around them. Concentration and anxiety stand merciful guard at the eardrums, short circuiting sensations and letting the men move in a mental void.

Bruins' Pilots Revamp 3d Line for Canadiens

By BILL GRIMES

Before they turn the Bruins loose against Les Canadiens tonight at the Boston Garden, Manager Art Ross and Coach "Dit" Clapper will revamp the so-called third line, in order to strengthen the club's attack.

Although the Rossmen have played eight games, tonight marks their second appearance of the campaign on home ice. Under the circumstances, meaning, of course, seven road games, the Bruins haven't fared so badly.

Manager Ross is confident that the Cowley and the Typhoon lines will keep the team in the running, with the veteran trio carrying most of the load until the kids get the feel of N. H. L. competition.

Over the week against the toughest clubs in the league, especially when they are playing at home, Bill Cowley, Herbie Cain and Bill Jennings picked up a total of nine points. Though Kenny Smith was the only member of the kid line to do any scoring in Montreal and Detroit, the Typhoons registered favorably with the experts, who are predicting a brilliant future for that trio.

Coach Clapper didn't use Gino Rozzini either in Montreal or Detroit. For his third line he had Art Jackson flanked by Norm Calladine and Armand Gaudreault.

Against the Flying Frenchmen tonight, Manager Ross might decide to try out an entirely new third line combination, comprising Rozzini, Gaudreault and Paul Gladu.

To assign a trio of ex-amateurs to play as a unit against the world's champions is a real gamble. But, Ross is a gambler. If he is convinced that the speed of Rozzini, Gaudreault and Gladu, all of whom can really fly on the steel runners, would disrupt the Canucks' offense, "Uncle Arthur" will not hesitate for a second to take the gamble.

DIT PRAISES BENNETT

Coach Clapper was loud in his praises of the performances Harvey Bennett gave over the week-end. He's satisfied that but for the letdown the Bruins suffered in the opening period, Bennett would have beaten the Red Wings. Just as soon as he receives a little more co-operation from his mates, the 18-year Bennett will be tough for the best N. H. L. scorers to beat, according to Coach Clapper.

At this stage of the 1943-44 race, Les Canadiens hadn't lost a game. They had been tied twice, however, by the Bruins. But, this season, they've dropped a home and home series to Toronto, so they are two points shy of a year ago.

Since they were here last March, the Canucks have lost Phil Watson, who returned to Rangers, Mike McMahon and Jerry Heffernan. On this trip Coach Dick Irvin has two new defensemen, Frankie Eddolls and Wilf Field and Fernald Gauthier.

The Flying Frenchmen are on a one week road trip, which began Sunday night in New York. They will be in Detroit Thanksgiving night and on Saturday they are booked for their second appearance of the season in the Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens.

On the other hand, the Rossmen are home for a week, during which they will play four games, Canadiens, Maple Leafs, Thursday, Rangers, Sunday, and the Red Wings one week from tonight.

Although the games in Montreal and Detroit were anything but pink tea affairs, the Bruins are in prime physical condition for tonight's battle with the holders of the Stanley Cup.

HERB CAIN THE SCORING HOUND—Bruins place great dependence on the blade of this young fellow's stick. May he be able to use it freely against the unbeaten Canadiens at the Garden tonight.

No Phone Calls

The Boston Bruins announced that no telephone reservations will be accepted on the day of the game for future Bruins' hockey games at the Garden. Telephone reservations must be picked up by 8 p. m. the night before games for the rest of the season or they will be cancelled.

El Getting Ready For Grid Crowd Rush

Frequent train service will be operated in the Cambridge-Dorchester tunnel on Thanksgiving Day morning directly to Stadium Station to take care of the crowd expected to attend the English High-Boston Latin High School football game.

Zanelli KO Explodes; Tried to Save Rival

By JACK CONWAY

"I DIDN'T want to knock him out!"

Ralph Zanelli kept repeating this statement as he rushed around the ring frantically, while Billy Tordiglione lay stretched out helpless on the canvas of the ring at the Garden.

Zanelli's left hook had exploded and crashed flush on Tordiglione's jaw in the early part of the tenth round. Tordiglione fell backward, his head hitting the floor of the ring with a heavy thump.

Ralph Zanelli

Billy tried to lift his head, but couldn't. Referee Tommy Rawson tolled off the count of ten.

Zanelli rushed across the ring, and started to lift Tordiglione in his arms, but was advised by anxious seconds that it would be better to allow the North End welterweight to rest until he recovered from the shock of the knockout.

Unable to help, Zanelli raced around the ring.

"I didn't want to knock him out!" Zanelli kept saying aloud.

When it was decided to move Tordiglione to his corner, Zanelli lifted him in his arms, and carried his ring rival to his seat where seconds worked over him.

Boxers Are Pals

ZANELLI AND Tordiglione have been pals for years. Zanelli has been the big name star, while Tordiglione has been the ambitious boy who hoped to reach the fistic heights. Tordiglione made long strides towards his goal in his bout with Jimmy McDaniels. Then came his chance to meet Zanelli. For Tordiglione to go forward he had to conquer his own hero.

For two rounds it looked as if Tordiglione would do so. He roared out of his corner, and beat Zanelli back under a furious two-fisted attack. Youth and reckless fistic fire had the veteran Zanelli on the defensive.

Fate then decided against Tordiglione. In the third round old wounds over the eyes began to open. Soon the blood was trickling from the open wounds.

Tordiglione lost his drive, while Zanelli's vicious attack to the head and body slowed Tordiglione down. In the third round, Zanelli slipped and fell to the canvas after missing a terrific swing.

Avoided Cuts Over Eyes

By the end of the sixth round Zanelli was in complete command. He had won the third, fourth, fifth and sixth sessions. Referee Tommy Rawson considered stopping the bout on account of the open wound over Tordiglione's eyes.

Billy pleaded for the chance to continue, and it was granted to him. Between rounds "Coogie" McFarland patched Tordiglione up as best he could.

Zanelli had the bout won, and he did not wish to damage his pal unnecessarily. He directed his fire to the mid-section. They were hard, crushing blows that shook Tordiglione up, and if they had been directed at the eyes they would have brought the bout to a quick ending.

The blow that knocked Tordiglione out in the tenth round had perfect timing. While it was not intended for a knockout, the left hook shot straight and true to Tordiglione's jaw. The second it landed, those persons at the ringside could see that Tordiglione was all through. He fell back in a helpless condition and was counted out.

Zanelli would rather the bout had gone the limit. He was willing to sacrifice a kayo victory to save Tordiglione from what he considered unnecessary punishment and a possible eye injury. Then his left hook exploded. Like a bursting shell, it carried destruction, and Tordiglione was in the path of the deadly smash.

Zanelli and Tordiglione each weighed 148½ pounds.

Miller Defeats Doty

"RED" DOTY of Hartford lost to Sidney Miller of Detroit who is a good boxer and sharp, clean hitter.

Ken Conley, son of the late Larry Conley, won from Billy Napper in four rounds in his professional debut. Napper suffered a hand injury, but was being outscored at the time.

A crowd of 3271 paid $7248 to see the show. The net gate after taxes was $4789.

Tufts Coach Has Proper Kick

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Lew Manly is usually the most amenable of coaches. But two incidents occurred in the Tufts-Harvard game of Saturday that incited his wrath, to wit: (1) Harvard's use of the double shift (for the first time in the game) with Tufts 30-yard line, and (2) a charge of unsportsmanalike conduct against a Tufts lineman. Both were instrumental in bringing the Crimson its second and winning touchdown against underdog Tufts, so you can understand Manly's rancor.

Here was the set-up: With the score 0-0, Fritts of Harvard had broken away for a 48-yard TD gallop on the first play of the second period. Tufts came roaring back and tied the score before the period ended despite a penalty that set them back from Harvard's 3 to the 8. It climaxed a spirited 46-yard march!

Huck Finnegan

So, in the third period the score was tied 6-all when Harvard took the ball on Tufts 48. A Navin-Perkins pass brought the Crimson to the 35, a Fritts sweep to the 26. Here Tufts held tenaciously and Harvard moved the ball only five yards in two or three tries. When it seemed as if the Jumbos would take the ball on downs, Harvard called the double-shift, tricked Tufts offside and thus gained a first down on the 21.

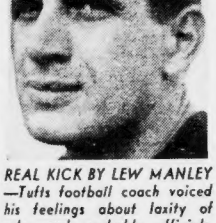
Tufts went berserk. An unwritten coaches' agreement called for such artifices to be started in midfield, if at all. It was funny when Harvard pulled it against the heavier, more experienced PT Boaters. Nobody thought it funny against smaller Tufts.

Well. Harvard had the first down it needed, and a Navin-Garrity screen pass gave them another first down on the 12. Cowen went to the 9. Fritts to the 4. Harvard still needed two yards for a first down and was handed it on a platter when a Tufts player was heard swearing—"Unsportsmanlike conduct." First down, Harvard, on the Tufts 2! Cowen promptly went over for the score. Imagine the furore in the Tufts stands!

WHERE WERE OFFICIALS?

"When a lineman takes a series of elbows on the chin play after play," Manly explained at the writers' luncheon, "he has a tendency to become profane. And one of our boys, his chin dented once too often, succumbed to the temptation of profanity.

"Elbows are supposed to be held close to the chest on offensive blocking," Manly continued, "but line play has developed into a wrestling contest. Movies of our first game with Harvard show Pierce (Harvard tackle) with a vise-like grip around the neck of a Tufts' lineman. Know why? His elbows had gone forward and upward so much our man charged under his arms."



REAL KICK BY LEW MANLEY—Tufts football coach voiced his feelings about laxity of rules, and probably officials, too, at yesterday's football luncheon. Lew calls them as he sees them. Too bad the paid officials can't do the same.

Manly wasn't hinting at any severance of relations between Harvard and Tufts. Relations are informal as they stand. But he would like to see a change in the rules deleting unethical maneuvers like the double shift and a stricter interpretation of line plays by officials.

* * *

Floyd Stahl and Phil Piskol represented Harvard at the luncheon. Henry Lamar was at the New York fiesta . . . Manly praised the word of Tufts guards Owens and Brucker, and Stahl thought FB Irwin some pumpkins . . . Lt. Red McClain, PT player-coach, said BC would face some sterling football players in HC's Sullivan, Smith and Kronoff. "Sullivan is their most dangerous back offensively," he said. "For a 17-year-old freshman he's tricky, smart and speedy." The popular red-head thought PT might have done better "if we knew what rules we were going to play under from week to week."

* * *

John P. Curley said the BC-HC game would start at 1:20 p. m. . . . Ed Kennedy of HC promised Boston it would see a smart, well-drilled eleven against BC. "We still use the single wing but it will be as deceptive as any 'T' formation you have seen. PT will vouch for that. They saw flankers, spreads and other frills, and BC will see them too." Kennedy boasted that Tom Smith of HC was the best end in this section . . . BC has sold 12,000 tickets for the game.

Eagles Prepare For Holy Cross

When the Boston College Eagles take the field against the Crusaders of Holy Cross next Sunday at Fenway Park it will mark the 41st meeting between the Jesuit rivals. The annual classic dates back to 1896 when the teams met for the first time with the Eagles eking out a 6-4 margin of victory.

The series is comparatively close although BC holds a slight edge to date. Going into Sunday's game the record stands: BC 20 and HC 17 with three ties. The last meeting between the two elevens saw the underdog Crusaders pin a stunning 55-12 defeat on the then undefeated BC team in 1942. They did not meet last year.

The last Boston College victory was a 14-13 affair in 1941. The three stalemates were all scoreless affairs coming in 1898, 1926 and 1932.

Crack B.C. High Team In Receptive Mood

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Anybody looking for a red-hot rival for a post-season football game?

Well, Boston College High School, scheduled to wind up its abbreviated program tomorrow afternoon at Braves Field, is really steaming under Coach Clem McCann and it wouldn't be at all surprising if the Eaglet officials might be open to an offer to meet an outstanding suburban school.

B. C. High, like all other schools, has played during the final week of November in past years so that there would be no argument against weather conditions, and, too, B. C. High isn't bound to quit football at the close of its campaign, as are other Boston schools.

As champion of the Boston City schools, the Eaglets would be a tremendous gate attraction. They'd be one of the few elevens in the state which could boast an undefeated record. And it's quite safe to say that B. C. High would hold its own in practically any type of competition, as is evident from the frequent scrimmages the Eaglets have had with top-flight teams such as Newton and Lynn English.

The McCann A. C. will be going after its sixth straight triumph tomorrow against its usual rival, Memorial. There isn't a reason in the world to doubt that the team will come through to add this decision to previous triumphs over Cambridge Latin (12-0); Boston English (14-13); Public Latin (19-0); Dorchester (28-0), and Boston Tech (26-13). The Boston Trade game was washed out, limiting B. C. High to six games.

Coach McCann hit the right combination with his squad after some experimenting against Cambridge Latin and when his team came through against English, he knew that he had hit upon a winner. With the exception of an injury to Guard Ed Furey in the Blue and Blue tilt, Coach McCann has had his identical starting lineup for every contest.

Furey will be back tomorrow fully recovered, but because Coach McCann refuses to break up his winning combination, Furey will have to sit on the bench as sophomore John Dulski, 180 pounds, goes on the field for the opening kickoff. Furey, however, will see plenty of action on the line that recently held two rivals to three first downs in one of the most stubborn defenses of the Braves Field season.

The remainder of the Eaglet forward wall will have Roland Kelch and 6 foot 1 inch Bill Green at ends; Bob Quinn, 185 pounds, and Bill Lynch, 195, at tackles; Paul King at a guard and John Catanio, 180, at center. Don Foley, 195-pound freshman who looks like Buzz Harvey crashing through a line, and Bill Morris will be held in readiness.
